CHERRY PECTORAL

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING-COUGH, CROUP, ASTHMA, AND CONSUMPTION.

Of all the numerous medicines extant, (and some of them valuable) for the cure of incipient complaints, nothing has ever been found which could compare in its effects with this Preparation. Others cure sometimes, but at all times and in all cases of the lungs and throat where medicine can give relief, this will do it. It is pleasant to take, and perfectly safe in accordance with the directions. We do not advertise for the information of those that have tried it, but those who have not. Parents who have known its value will not be without it, and its timely use, they are secure from the dangerous consequences of Coughs and Colds which neglected, ripen into fatal consumption.

The Diploma of the Massachusetts Institute was awarded to this preparation, by the Board of Judges in September 1847. Also, the Medals of the three great Institutes of Arts in the country, also the Diploma of the Ohio Institute, at Cincinnati, has been given to the Cherry Pectoral, by their Government in consideration of its extraordinary excellence and usefulness in curing affections of the Lungs and Throat.

Read the following opinion founded on the long experience of the eminent Physician of the Port and City of ST. JOHNS, May 8, 1851.

Dr. J. C. Ayer—

Five years trial of your CHERRY PECTORAL in my practice has proved to me that I cannot from its composition, recommend it too highly, for the relief of colds and coughs to which we, in this section, are peculiarly liable.

I think its equal has not yet been discovered, nor do I know how a better remedy can be made for the distempers of the Throat and Lungs.

J. HURON, M. D. F. R. S.

See what it has done on a wasted constitution, not only in the following cases, but in a thousand more :

Sudbury, Jan 24th, 1851

Dr. Ayer—In the month of July last I was attacked by violent Diarrhœa, in the fulness of California. I returned to Sudbury in a state of wasting away, bereft of my strength and flesh, and reduced to a mere skeleton. My friends thought I could not live. I was cured, but was followed by a cough—and in such a manner as to fully startled for home, but received no benefit from the voyage. My cough continued to grow worse, and when I arrived in New York, I was so emaciated, (only weighing 98 pounds) that my friends could scarcely recognize me. I was confident that I was in a decline, and that I could not live. In this state of circumstances I took your truly invaluable medicine with a feeble expectation of deriving any benefit from its use. When I commenced taking these lines did not regard I say that I was cured, through you, that my health, in the space of eight months, is fully restored. I attribute it to the use of your Cherry Pectoral.

Yours truly, WILLIAM W SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 12, 1848.

Dear Sir—Feeling that I have been spared from a premature grave, through your instrumentality by the providence of God, I will take the liberty to express to you my gratitude.

A cough and the alarming symptoms of Consumption had reduced me so low as to leave me anything like hope, when my physician brought me a bottle of your Cherry Pectoral. I tried it, and to the astonishment of my friends, to follow was what it has restored me to sound health.

If it will do for others what it has for me, you are certainly one of the benefactors of mankind.

Sincerely wishing your blessing, I am

Very respectfully yours,

JOHN J. CLARKE, Rector of Keter's Church.

WHITE ZINC PAINT,

After thoroughly testing it for two years, has proved to be the most durable and economical paint for all purposes, for which it is recommended. For whitewash it has no equal, being perfectly harmless to the skin, and will not injure the most delicate color. It is one third heavier than white lead, and is, therefore, much cheaper to use. As an article for outside work it will stand the weather, even when exposed to the most severe changes, for twelve years without cracking or scaling, and will not turn yellow or blacken by sulphurous gases, as white lead is liable to do. Their in a few minutes, are ready for use, and for painting upon brick, stone, and other rough surfaces, is unequalled. They are also remarkable for their fire-proof properties. They are also valuable for many other purposes, but for the above mentioned purposes only do we recommend them. For the further particulars address as above.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

OF NORTH CAROLINA.

William G. Crosby

FOR GOVERNOR,

ISRAEL WASHBURN Jr.

...ject to the ...ing the election of their candidates for president, in the gathering up here and there the whinings and complaints of certain disappointed whigs at the nomination made at the Baltimore Convention. These are all paraded as though they were of very grave importance, and as better material than anything they have on hand in the way of the advocacy of their candidates, or in commendation of their measures. The party must indeed be reduced very low to resort to such matter for the enlightenment of their readers! But that it is probably the best they can do, for they can have very little to say about their candidate his history, or, achievements, the measures he has originated or advocated. They must improve the hour and bair it hearty about using up all the dissatisfaction which has been expressed, for these complaints will soon be removed as time blunts the keen edge of disappointment, and reflection and patriotism gain their wanted ascendency in the mind. Every intelligent and reliable whig must perceive that the only way for a great national party to succeed in the establishment of their principles and their measures is for unity of action upon a general basis, which shall include within it the general sentiment and strength. To this extremes must come or fail to exert an influence. The main column of the whig party has arranged itself and chosen its favorite standard bearer, and is rapidly getting into motion on the field. The scattered forces, the groups pausing here and there are already coming in and will soon be found in their places in the noble column and completing the Grand Army, as it marches onward in a manful conflict for principles and patriotism, and animated with a common hope by the prospect of a coming victory. The current of a mighty river receiving, as it moves on, the waters of many tributaries, until its channel is filled to the brim, sweeps away in its resistless impetus the eddies that may have been formed in its course, as well as the obstructions that might seek to impede it. So it will be when the spirit of 1840, shall be fully aroused and the sun of another political Austerlitz shall shed its brilliant rays upon the banners of whigs marching to victory, then the few complaints which shall have been made, and the disappointments which shall have been felt by any portion of the whigs will have been forgotten by them, and only remembered as having been recorded in the columns of locofoco papers. Already the skies are bright, the Hosts are gathering, the distinct unity of the party is approaching, and success seems sure. Gen. Scott has always proved a successful leader, and he is not likely to fail in this campaign, which instead of diminishing his reputation, is but to add the most certain proof that his capacity as a civilian is equal to that in military affairs. The democrats and the world already give him credit for the latter, and he only needs the opportunity, to write, by his acts, the other page in his history to acquire equal reputation and honor in the former sphere.

☞ We learn that great preparations are being made for a very rich display at the turn out of the Antique, Unique, many colored and Honorable Fantasticals of the Red Button, on the morning of the 5th inst. The horses are being fed and painted and the whites of their eyes are expected to appear in sky blue. They are to assemble in general council at Shaw & Billings' stable at 5 o'clock A M Monday.

☞ Messrs. Richards & Perkins are engaged in the preparation of an excellent article known as the Saponine Tooth Powder, and which they put up in very neat packages. It is an article of much value and is destined to be generally approved and used. This firm have also been preparing the Geranium Balm, for restoring the hair, which has been highly commended.

☞ The editor of the Belfast Journal need give himself no uneasiness on account of our suggestion to the whigs to enjoy themselves with their friends on the anniversary of Independence, over a "hasty plate of soup." It was certainly a far-fetched idea to suppose that we intended any thing beyond or beside a good dish of political talk on the occasion.

☞ Mr. Clay leaves three sons and no daughters. Thomas was with him when he died. James is engaged in business at St. Louis, and John, the youngest, resides at Ashland with his mother, who is in somewhat better health than of late. Mr. Clay has had altogether twelve children. What remains of his family are in comfortable circumstances.

☞ The Whigs think the nomination of Pierce is first-rate—for them; but the locos do not seem to relish the nomination of Gen. Scott.

River and Harbor Improvements.

The Committees in Congress on the subject of River and Harbor Improvement have perfected a bill for those objects, but so far it has not been as strongly pressed as it should have been. The general Commerce of the country is deeply interested in having these improvements made; and no man has yet been found possessing sufficient wit and wisdom to show any just or appropriate or consistent way in which the improvements can be accomplished, except by the General Government, who derives its revenues mainly from Commerce.

Presidents Taylor and Presidents Fillmore have called the attention of Congress to this subject and urged it upon their consideration, but the locos in Congress and who control the majority, in both branches, are opposed to these improvements, and contrive to kill or stave off every bill upon the subject. While every State, and all the people interested in commerce cannot but be in favor of improvements to Rivers and Harbors by the U. S. Government, those States in which these improvements are to be made, and who are suffering the most for the want of them, cannot but have their eyes open to the men who violently and wrongfully oppose them. No two men in the Union, says the New York Tribune, have been more sweepingly hostile to all River and Harbor improvements than Franklin Pierce and William R. King. They have fought against bills which Committees of their own party have framed, and which, passing in spite of their hostility, Jackson and Van Buren signed. Should they by any chance be elected, all hope of appropriations during their term must be abandoned. Read their advocates count on the votes of Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, &c., to elect them! Perhaps they may get those and enough more to put them in—though we do not begin to believe it.

Count Louis Kuliski.

This gentleman who took part in the last revolution in Poland, and in consequence was obliged to leave his country and his estates, which were confiscated by the Austrian government, will lecture at the City Hall this evening. His subject is the recent War of Independence in Italy, respecting which he had good opportunity to inform himself, having been concerned in it. In his lecture, he will make particular reference to Mazzini.

Count Kuliski purposes to remain in the city, and give instruction in the French, German and Italian languages, with which he is familiar, provided he can have sufficient encouragement. His acquaintance with the English language is such that he will be enabled to communicate instruction to pupils without difficulty.

He has letters from Gen. Scott, and other gentlemen of high standing in this country and Europe, which, aside from the very favorable impression he himself makes, will satisfy all that he is a gentleman deserving their confidence.

His lecture was delivered in Boston, Lowell, Salem and other places to large audiences, and is highly complimented. We trust there will be a full attendance this evening.

☞ The Whigs of Lewiston Falls have held a very enthusiastic ratification meeting of the nomination of Gen. Scott, and resolved, as follows:—

That the Whigs of Lewiston Falls and vicinity, under the banner of our world renowned hero, will follow in the late victory in the Comet District with a glorious triumph of Whig principles and Whig Candidates, both in September and November.

The meeting closed with a torch light procession.

☞ A juror in one of the courts of New York, a day or two since, when the jury retired to deliberate in regard to a verdict, anticipating a long siege, took a bottle of brandy with him. He was severely reprimanded by the Court, and in addition fined $25.

The Richmond Whig, speaking of the coming election for the Presidency, says—

"The Democrats have a holy horror of Chippewas luck. He always beats! The British know it; the Indians know it; the Mexicans know it; the Locos know it. The knowing ones never bet against a winning horse—and on a stumbling one they never will stake a dime. His success is certain as death or taxes."

☞ The intelligence of the death of Mr Clay, as it passed over the country, caused a general feeling of gloom. In some of the cities business was suspended, and the people met in public assemblies to honor his memory.

☞ The Belfast Journal goes into mourning because the Whigs of that city did not fire guns on hearing of the nomination of General Scott. The Whigs will give a bomb shell salute in November next, when they elect their hero to the presidency, just to see how that will suit.

An Association has been formed in South Carolina for the purpose of promoting the erection by the citizens of the State of a monument to John C. Calhoun. A meeting of delegates from all parts of the State is to be held in reference to the subject.

Mr. Blunt of New York, stated at the ratification meeting in New York, that Mr. Van Buren had himself told him, that he had employed Gen. Scott to conduct many delicate missions, and he had always been successful beyond all other men.

☞ The Steamer Governor has been taken upon the Maine Railway at Portland for examination and repair, after having got aground at Belfast and may not return to this city until Monday or Tuesday next.

☞ The White Mountain telegraph line is in operation to the Gorham House, and ready for business. This will prove a great convenience to those who have friends visiting the White Mountains this summer.

☞ There was a copious rain here yesterday, uncommonly acceptable to farmers, millions, log drivers and all others. More rain probably fell than has previously fallen since the spring opened.

☞ The fragments of the wreck of a steamship, supposed to be the steamer President, have been washed ashore on the coast of Scotland.

CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, June 30.

Senate. The Rev. Mr. Butler offered up an appropriate prayer, alluding most feelingly to the national bereavement.

Mr. Cass rose and said:

Mr. PRESIDENT—Again has an impressive warning come to teach us that "in the midst of life we are in death." The ordinary labors of this Hall are suspended, and its contentions hushed before the power of Him who says to the storm of human passions, as He said of old to the waves of Galilee, "Peace, be still." The lessons of His providence, severe as they may be, often become merciful dispensations—like that which is now spreading sorrow through the land, and which is reminding us that we have higher duties to fulfil, and graver responsibilities to encounter, than those that meet us here, when we lay our hands upon His holy word, and invoke His holy name, promising to be faithful to the Constitution which He gave us in His mercy, and will withdraw only in the hour of our blindness and disobedience, and of His own wrath. Another great man has fallen on our land—rich in deeds, in years, and in honors—but never dearer to the American people than when called from the theatre of his services and renown, to that final bar where the lofty and lowly must all meet at last.

I do not rise, upon this mournful occasion, to indulge in the language of panegyric. My regard for the memory of the dead, and for the obligations of the living, would equally rebuke such a course. The severity of truth is at once our proper duty and our best consolation. Born during the revolutionary struggle, our deceased associate was one of the few remaining public men who connect the present generation with the actors in the stirring scenes of that eventful period, and whose names and deeds will be known only in the history of their country. He was another illustration, and a noble one too, of the glorious equality of our institutions, which freely offer their rewards to all who justly seek them; for he was the architect of his own fortune, having made his way in life by self-exertion, and he was an early adventurer in the great forest of the West, then a world of primitive vegetation, but now the abode of intelligence and religion, of prosperity and civilization. But he possessed that intellectual superiority which overcomes surrounding obstacles, and which local seclusion cannot long withhold from general knowledge and appreciation.

It is almost half a century since he passed through Chillicothe, then the seat of Government of Ohio, when I was a member of the Legislature, on his way to take his place in this very body, which is now listening to this reminiscence, and to a feeble tribute of regard from one who then saw him for the first time, but who can never forget the impression he produced by the charms of his conversation, the frankness of his manner, and the high qualities with which he was endowed. Since then he has belonged to his country, and has taken part, and a prominent part, both in peace and war, in all the great questions affecting her interests and her honor. And though others been ely fortune often to differ from him, yet I believe he was as pure a patriot as ever participated in the councils of a nation. That he exposed a powerful influence through the whole country, we all feel and know; and we know, too, the eminent endowments which gave him this high distinction—frank and fearless in the expression of his opinions, and in the performance of his duties, with rare powers of eloquence, which never failed to rivet the attention of his auditors, and which always commanded admiration, even when they did not carry conviction; prompt in decision and firm in action, and with a vigorous intellect trained in the contests of a stirring life, and strengthened by enlarged experience and observation, joined with a tolerant ardent love of country, and of great purity of purpose.

These were the elements of his power and success, and we dwell upon them with mournful gratification now, when we shall soon follow him to the cold and silent tomb, where we shall commit earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust, but with the blessed conviction of the truth of that divine revelation, which teaches us that there is life and hope beyond the narrow house where we shall leave him alone to the mercy of his God and of ours.

He has passed beyond the reach of human praise or censure, but the judgment of his contemporaries has preceded and pronounced the judgment of history, and his name and fame will shed lustre upon his country, and will be proudly cherished in the hearts of his countrymen for long ages to come. Yes, they will be cherished and fondly remembered when these marble columns that surround us,—so often the witnesses of his triumphs, but in a few brief hours, when his mortal frame, dispelled of the immortal spirit, shall rest under this dome for the last time, to become the witnesses of his defeat in that final contest when the mightiest fall before the great destroyer;—when these columns themselves have fallen, like all the works of man, leaving their broken fragments to tell the story of former magnificence, and the very ruins that announce decay and desolation.

I was often with him during his last illness, when the world and all the things of the world were fast fading away before him. He knew that the silver cord was about to be severed, and that the golden bowl was broken—but he was resigned to the will of Providence, feeling that he who gave it has the right to take away in the own good time and manner.

After his duty to his Creator, his anxiety for his family, his first thought was for his country and its preservation and perpetuation of the Constitution and the Union—dear to him in the hour of death as they were in the vigor of life—for that Constitution and Union whose defence in the great crisis of their peril and establishment he so energized, and had stimulated those more active and powerful efforts which he will be wanted can never forget, and which no doubt hastened the final catastrophe which a whole people deplores with a unanimity not less honorable to themselves than to the memory of their afflictions.

And when we shall enter that narrow valley through which he has passed before us, and which leads to the judgment seat of God, may we be able to say, in the beautiful language of the hymn of the dying Christian—dying, but of living triumphant—

"The world recedes—it disappears;
Heaven opens on my eyes, my ears
With sounds seraphic ring;
Lend, lend your wings—I mount, I fly—
O! grave, where is thy victory?
O! death, where is thy sting?"

Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his."

Mr. Hunter followed, and claimed for Virginia a place among the mourners for her illustrious son. He passed a high eulogium upon the public acts of Mr. Clay and his patriotism.

Mr. Hale alluded to the national bereavement, and spoke in the highest terms of admiration of Mr. Clay's efforts in behalf of the struggling South American colonies and of Greece.

Mr. Clemens spoke most eloquently of the purity and fervor of Mr. Clay's patriotism, and said it must have cheered his last moments to know that both political parties had adopted and resolved to maintain unimpaired the platform he had erected.

Messrs. Cooper, Seward, Jones of Iowa, and Brooks, followed in tributes to the memory and virtues of the deceased.

The following resolutions, offered by Mr. Underwood, were then adopted:

Resolved, That a Committee of six be appointed by the President from the Senate to take orders for superintending the funeral of Henry Clay, late a member of this body, which will take place to-morrow at 12 o'clock precisely, and that the Senate will attend the same.

Resolved, That the members of the Senate, from a sincere desire of showing every mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, will go into mourning for one month by the usual mode of wearing crape on the left arm.

Resolved, As a further mark of respect entertained by the Senate for the memory of Mr. Clay, and his long and distinguished services to his country, that his remains, in pursuance of the known wishes of the family, be removed to the sepulchre selected by himself at Lexington Ky., in charge of the Sergeant-at-Arms, and attended by a committee of six Senators, to be appointed by the President, who shall have full power to carry this resolution into effect.

Resolved, That as an additional mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, The Senate do now adjourn.

Messrs. Hunter, Dawson, Jones of Iowa, Cooper, Bright and Smith, were appointed the Committee of Arrangements for the funeral.

The Senate then adjourned.

Gen. Scott's Letter of Acceptance.

WASHINGTON, June 24.

TO HON. J. G. CHAPMAN, President of the Whig National Convention:

SIR—I have the honor to receive from your hands the official notice of my "unanimous nomination as the Whig candidate for the office of President of the United States," together with a copy of the resolutions passed by the Convention, expressing their opinions upon points of the most prominent questions of national policy. This great distinction, conferred by a numerous, intelligent and patriotic body, representing millions of my countrymen, sinks deep into my heart, and remembering the very eminent names which were before the Convention, in valuable competition with my own, I am ready to feel, approximately, the weight of responsibility belonging to my new position. Not having written a word to procure this distinction, I lost not a moment after it had been conferred, in addressing a letter to one of your members, to signify what would be, at the proper time, the substance of my reply to the Convention, and I now have the honor to repeat in a more formal manner, as the occasion justly demands, that I accept the nomination with the resolutions annexed.

The political principles and measures laid down in those resolutions are so broad that but little is left for me to add. I therefore barely suggest in this place that, should I, by the partiality of my countrymen be elected to the Chief Magistracy of the Union, I shall be ready in my connection with Congress to recommend or approve of measures in regard to the management of the Public domain, so as to secure an early settlement of the same, favorable to actual settlers, but consistent, nevertheless, with due regard for the equal rights of the whole American people, in that vast national inheritance, and also to recommend or approve of a single alteration in our Naturalization laws, suggested by military experience. Namely giving to all foreigners the right of citizenship, who shall faithfully serve in time of war, one year on board our public ships, or in our land forces, regulars or volunteers, on their receiving an honorable discharge from the service.

In regard to the general policy of the administration, if elected, I should desire to seek counsel from those who approve that policy for the agents to carry it into execution, and I should seek to cultivate harmony and fraternal sentiments throughout the Whig party, without attempting to reduce its numbers by proscription to exact uniformity in any view, but I believe that the same due regard in regard to the qualifications for office, resulting and appointing no one evidently deficient in capacity or integrity, or unfavorable to liberty, to the Constitution and the Union. Convinced that harmony and good will between the different quarters of our great country, is as essential to the present and future welfare of the country, and with a revolution in those interests that can know in search and no North, I should neither countenance nor tolerate any sectional, disorder, faction or resistance to the laws or the Union, on any pretext in any part of the land, and I should carry into the civil administration the same principle of military conduct—obedience to the legislative and judicial departments of government, each in its constitutional sphere—leaving only in respect to the legislature the possible resort to the veto power, always to be most cautiously exercised, and under those circumstances which commend it to the country.

Finally, I may add reference to the principles of the Whig party as expressed in the resolutions of the Convention and herein suggested, with a sincere and earnest purpose to advance the greatness and happiness of the republic, and thus to cherish and encourage the secure, of constitutional liberty throughout the World, avoiding every act and thought that might implicate our country in a unjust or unnecessary war, or impair the faith of treaties, and discountenancing all political agitation injurious to the interests of society and dangerous to the Union; I can offer no other pledge or guarantee than the known incidents of a long public life now undergoing the severest examination. Feeling myself highly fortunate in my associate on the ticket, and with a lively sense of my obligation to the convention and to your personal courtesies, I have the honor to remain, sir,

With great esteem,
Your most obedient servant,
WINFIELD SCOTT.

The following is Hon. William A. Graham's letter of acceptance:

WASHINGTON, June 24, 1852.

SIR—I am gratified to acknowledge the receipt of the communication which you did me the honor to deliver in person on yesterday, announcing my unanimous nomination as the Whig candidate for the office of Vice President of the United States, by the National Convention which recently assembled in Baltimore, accompanied by a copy of the Resolutions of the Convention upon questions of National principle and policy.

I cordially approve the declarations made by these resolutions on matters of the most recent practical interest. They do, but portray, the conduct of an Administration of the Government of which for near two years I have been a member. On all other matters they but reiterate the doctrines and recommendations held by its Chief in important public communications.

Should the people the United States give their sanction to the nominations of your Convention, so far as I shall be invested with authority, a faithful adherence to these doctrines may be expected.

I therefore accept the distinction, so honorably tendered, with a grateful heart, but with unaffected diffidence. It is a satisfaction, however, to know that the place to which I have been nominated is but secondary, and that for the first office the Convention have proposed a citizen of tried patriotism and virtue, long and familiarly acquainted with public affairs and public men, a safe and sagacious counsellor, who has well fulfilled every trust heretofore committed to his hands, and has illustrated our history by eminent public services.

With my thanks for the courtesy with which you have honored me in the execution of your office, and with the highest personal respect, I am your obedient servant,

WM. A. GRAHAM.

The Hon. J. G. CHAPMAN,
Pres. of the Whig National Convention.

☞ A wonderful natural curiosity, in the shape of an extensive cave, has been found in Calaveras county, on the south bank of the south branch of Sutter's Creek. The following is a description by a visitor:

"The entrance is through a small opening in the hill, just sufficient to admit a man's body. The descent is easy, the many projections of the rock affording ample means for safe footing. Neither is it of very great depth, the top of the platform not being more than ten feet from the entrance, whence it slopes gently down till the centre is reached, forming a chamber of about thirty feet high and about fifty long. The floor is composed of octagons, of calcareous formation, along which, in a narrow bed, silently glides a crystal stream, rising from a spring in one of the lateral chambers. The roof is divided into compartments, the centre being a large circle, from which depend clusters of stalactites of every variety, some crystalline, others opaque, while some again partake of a variegated hue, as if tinged by coloring matter in the rock thro' which they have percolated. The graining of the roof is as perfect as if moulded by the hand of art, terminating in massive pilasters, with richly adorned capitals, strongly reminding one of an ancient Gothic cathedral. From the main chamber branch two galleries, leading into small apartments, rich in groups of the most tasteful petrifaction, varying from the massive block to the most delicate and finely painted crystalline needle."

☞ Independence is to be celebrated at Belfast by the Fire Department.

NEW YORK, July 2.

Arrived at New York to-day Steamer Northern Light, from San Francisco, with $200,000 in gold.

☞ Gleason's Pictorial for this day opens with an Independence allegorical representation and contains various other pictorials of much interest. It may be obtained at the Bookstores.

☞ The Steamship Boston will make an excursion from Rockland and Belfast to this city on Monday next. A Band of music will be on board.

☞ There are to be extra trains on the Old town Railroad on the 5th inst., at a reduced price, in order to enable every body to take an Independent ride.

A boat containing five persons, which left this city Tuesday morning, on a fishing and pleasure excursion, was capsized by a squall, about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, near the mouth of Harmon's Harbor, in Sheepscot River, and a young man, named Michael Dorsey, belonging to this city aged about twenty years, was drowned. The others saved themselves by swimming.—Bath Tribune.

[Extract from an Address on the Influence of the Newspaper Press.]

In all our hopes, imagination's smile
Presents its charms to brighten and beguile,
Without its light to flatter and to cheer,
All human prospects would look fair appear.
Some secret care the promised joy would shroud,
No sky would ever be without a cloud;
Tho' by the magic of its dazzling hue,
That "distance lends enchantment to the view"—
But while its brilliant rays must continue to bless,
They never should be kindled to excess,
Or take a flame and reap the ravished mind,
"And burn to destroy or dazzle to blind."
It must be tempered to produce its end,
And with subduing warmth its splendor blend,
To give its power a sure and rightful reign
The art of reason should its fire restrain—
Then, like the flame, they on the hearth stone glows,
It will afford its joys without its woes.
If fancy's high wrought ideas fill the mind
To struggle with the life, to all assigned,
If disappointment often mars the flows,
Which she has painted with her rainbow hues,
And misfortune and fear and sorrow pass
To cloud the glittering splendor of joy's skies,
There is a praise, which to her works is due,
And which should recommend them to our view—
It is, that, if for fascinating art,
Misleads, it seldom will corrupt the heart.
And, if it incites its lovers of their peace,
The baser passions it will not increase.
With proper firmness it may not prepare
Life's common duties and its ills to bear,
But, what will say, it renders man more fit
To seek us follies, or its crimes commit?
Or, if it useful to themselves or ease,
It makes them vilest objects of disgrace
In candors view its evil, as its blame,
Where is any to deserve the name,
Which follows from the love of fiction's charms,
Is chiefly borne by those who seek its harms.
And, as the canker worm destroys the flow'r,
While, whose bloom it resides to devour,
So fiction's poison, if it has a sting,
Is mostly spent, where first it folds its wing,
To breed, "like fulgore, cowering on their nest,"
Its fatal joys—within the reader's breast,
Unlike the subtle venom, which is spilt,
To ruin innocence, as well as guilt,
And, if its ill effects should further go,
Like streams diminish, with less pow'r they flow.
Let all, who would be just prepare to say,
If on the scenes, which fiction's arts display,
There's less to please than pain the moral sight,
Or more of profit'd sorrow than delight,
And, as a further bar of mental food,
It custom more for evil tastes than good,
And let the honest foes of fiction tell,
If their minds are not enchanted by its spell
The coarse and vulgar, or the chaste, refined,
The clear and gifted, or the dull and blind,
The pure in moral thought, or the impure,
When no true worth or beauty can allure?
Then say, what would, by fair deductive rules,
Legitimate be by such fallacious tools.
As sober sense and reason may decide,
Let them reject its readings or provide"

AGENCY FOR BUSINESS WITH U. S. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON

No. 22 State Street, Boston.

IN 1840 the subscriber was appointed by the Commissioner of Patents, Agent of the U. S. Patent Office, in accordance with the 10th Sec. of Act of '37.

Having relinquished the Agency for the transmission of Models, and adopted a more expeditious mode of sending them to the Patent Office, whereby a Patent may be procured about six weeks earlier (he continues to forward them free of expense—to prepare Caveats, Specifications, Assignements and all the necessary Papers and Drawings for Patents; and to render advice confidential and scientific on matters respecting the same. Patents secured in Europe and other countries.

In application at this office, inventors are saved the time and expense of a journey to Washington and delay there, besides all the trouble in obtaining their patents. They who have the advantage of verbally explaining their inventions and of consulting in respect to them; matters in general, of paramount importance in order to obtain correct specifications and claims. The experience of sixteen years practice, an extensive collection of rare works, decisions, &c., on mechanical subjects, the Patent Laws, and patents of different countries, collected at much expense, during the long time this office has been established, together with accounts here kept of inventions patented at Washington, enable the subscriber to afford information and advice of practicing Patents, assistance and information which in other respects might be difficult of attainment.

R. H. EDDY, Solicitor of Patents.

WASHINGTON, JULY 21, 1849.—During the time I occupied the Office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. EDDY, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office as Solicitor for procuring Patents. There were few if any persons acting in that capacity, who had as much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity and success, regard to the public, as one of the best informed, and most skillful practitioners in the United States, and having a disposition in assisting inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. Late Commissioner of Patents.

Great American Remedy,

FOR COLDS, COUGHS, ASTHMA, CROUP AND CONSUMPTION.

WHY, in valids, do you almost invariably overlook the very best remedy for your complaint, in search of something with a foreign or mysterious, or crack jaw name? Half of them are made by quacks, or persons having not a tithe of the scientific and practical knowledge, either of medicines, or of the human system, of the author of the above medicines. For dry, hard coughs, and for children with severe stuffed colds, or with croup it is invaluable; and I challenge a trial of effects with any Indian, Egyptian, Arabian, English, French, German or any other foreign or domestic preparation, which, is now offered to the public for sale, in all the cases for which it is recommended.
